

Question 1867) - A man seizes a runaway slave to return him to his owner. The slave escapes from the man. What is the status of his reward?

A: He is not entitled to a reward just as he is not liable for the slave escaping from him. It is appropriate for him to make witnesses that he is taking the runaway to his owner when he seizes him.

~ al-Quduri ~