

Question 2374) - A man appointed two executors. Must they transact together?

A: Yes, According to Imaam Abu Hanifah RAH. and Imaam Muhammed RAH. none may transact without the other, except for purchasing funeral cloth and making funeral arrangements for the deceased; feeding and clothing his minor children; returning trusts; implementing specific instructions of the bequest; freeing specific slaves; fulfilling debts; and representing the deceased in legal disputes.

~ al-Quduri ~