

Question 1379) - A Mazun trades and incurs debts. Who is liable for them?

A: The debts will be on his neck [slavery] and he will be sold for the creditors, unless the owner ransoms him. Once he is sold the creditors will share the price in proportion to their shares. If there remains an outstanding amount then it will be claimed from him when he is free.

~ al-Quduri ~